

CONNECTOR TERMINAL FABRICATION METHOD

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A connector terminal device fabrication method in which a substrate is drilled to form through holes, a copper foil is overlaid on the substrate, and then the copper foil is etched, forming contact spring arms in the holes for the contact of the electronic contacts of electronic members and circuit lines respectively extended from the contact spring arms.